Goals The objectives of this course are twofold. First, students will gain insight into the essential elements of the process of assurance services. Second, students will obtain a solid knowledge of the academic literature on assurance services. To that end, the process of assurance services will be put into perspective by the results of academic research. Students who successfully complete this course will have sufficient knowledge of the process of assurance services to effectively perform entry-level assurance work in professional accounting firms. Furthermore, students will be able to read and critically evaluate auditing research, and report the results of research on current and fundamental issues in the accounting profession.

Description The broad area of assurance services concerns the relevance and reliability of financial and non-financial information. This course more specifically focuses on those assurance services that improve the reliability of information as perceived by decision makers such shareholders. In particular, this course on assurance services will focus on audits of financial statements performed by public accounting firms. The course will cover the essential elements of the process of assurance services (audit process) as well as academic literature on assurance services. Essential elements of the audit process are for example business risk assessment, internal control evaluation, planning of the audit approach including audit risk assessment, performance of analytical and detailed procedures, and audit reporting. Academic research that will be discussed relates to current issues such as professional skepticism, auditor independence, audit firm governance, quality control, public oversight, audit market structure, concentration, competition, and audit pricing.
