Description

This course covers too broad topics, which are of importance to anyone wanting to do Business in Europe: Entrepreneurship and Industrial Organization. While Entrepreneurship is all about the birth and start-up of new and innovative business ventures, IO looks rather at the broader factors that determine innovation and economic vitality. Entrepreneurship comes in various forms, such as Self-employment, birthing new ventures, Unicorns, etc. They all have different causes and effects – on the economy, but also on the entrepreneur themselves. Further, it is important to learn about the latest entrepreneurial tools to start off new ventures, the lean start-up method. This method is all about how to be innovative in highly uncertain environments. Industrial Organization is important, since it determines the business environment of entrepreneurs. Important topics to understand, are innovation, competition, mergers and cartels, especially how those play out in different geographic regions across Europe.
